God puts space between the water of earth and the water of heaven - names the space sky.

God assigns water specific boundaries on the earth. God calls the dry ground land and the water seas. God speaks into existence trees, plants and all vegetation on the land.

God creates the sun, moon and stars.

God creates sea life and birds.

PARENT GUIDE

Perhaps no story better portrays God's power than the account of Creation. The idea of God speaking the universe into existence can be more than a "mind-full" for adults to comprehend. But children accept it at face value — they don't have any trouble believing in a big God who can create big things.

You can teach a wide variety of lessons that revolve around Creation, such as learning about God's power or learning to respect and care for God's Creation. Creation is a fun topic! With stars and planets, flowers and trees, you can make talking about Creation interesting and fun for the whole family to experience. Here are a couple options to try out this week:

- Nature Walk (daytime option): During the fall season we experience God's creativity as leaves change colors. Take a family walk in the woods, a park or your backyard. Collect different leaves and nuts that have fallen from the trees and discover how each is uniquely made. Talk about how God created trees and other plant life to reproduce themselves. The leaves have to fall off the trees in order for new growth to happen in the spring. Bring your Bible with you and read Genesis 1:11-12 together.
- Star Gaze (nighttime option): Pick a night this week when the skies will be clear. Grab a blanket, Bible, and flashlight. Go outside in your yard and lay on the blanket together. Spend time looking at the stars, planets and the moon. MARVEL at it! Talk about how God created the stars just by speaking them into existence. Talk about God's power and creativity. He created all this for His Glory. Use your light and have someone read Psalm 19:1. (You could even challenge each other to memorize this verse.)
